REPORT FROM THE LEGISLATURE

It was with shock and sadness that the world watched violence unfold in Israel. That is why our government announced $100,000 of immediate emergency aid to the humanitarian organization Canadian Magen David Adom for Israel (CDMA). Based in Montreal, the CDMA is the sole authorized fund-raising organization within Canada dedicated to supplying ambulances, medical equipment, supplies and blood testing kits to support the lifesaving efforts in Israel. This donation demonstrates Saskatchewan's unwavering support for Israel, and condemnation of the horrific terrorist attacks waged against civilians at the hands of Hamas and Hezbollah. We stand with the people of Israel during this tragic time and pray for all of those affected by this terrorist attack.

Our government recently announced an investment of $40.2 million over the next two years to fund a new Provincial Approach to Homelessness program. In Regina and Saskatoon, 155 new supportive housing units will be developed for individuals who need more than a home to remain connected to housing. Supportive housing provides on-site and visiting support and connection to wrap-around services to help individuals find stability. In urban centres across the province, 120 new emergency shelter spaces will be created, bringing the provincial total to 500 for this winter.

In addition, two complex needs emergency shelters will be established in Regina and Saskatoon, which will provide secure and medically supervised places for individuals to go for up to 24 hours. Our government is committed to working with Indigenous partners, municipalities and community-based organizations to build and enhance our housing and addictions programs, while protecting all of our communities.

Our government also recently announced a new Action Plan for Mental Health and Addictions with an investment of $49.4 million over 5 years. A total of 500 new addictions treatment spaces will be created, more than doubling the number currently funded across the province. Work will begin immediately on a central intake system that patients can contact directly to refer themselves for mental health and addictions services.

The plan also includes expanding the Mental Health Capacity Building in Schools initiative to five more school divisions, with plans for more in future years; providing wrap-around mental health and addiction supports for residents of the new supportive housing units; and creating a Provincial Opioid Agonist Therapy (POAT) program to make addictions medicines more accessible across the province. This new plan will build a seamless continuum of care that includes detox, inpatient treatment, and supportive living.

Our government is able to make these investments thanks to our province's strong and growing economy. Saskatchewan ranked first in growth in building permits among provinces with a 59 per cent increase from August 2022 to August 2023, while nationally, permits were down 5.9 per cent. The total value of Saskatchewan's building permits for the month of August 2023 was $262 million.

Saskatchewan's labour force remains strong as well, with 13,700 new jobs from September 2022 to September 2023. The province's unemployment rate is 4.9 per cent, below the national average of 5.5 per cent. Employment increased 6,000 from last month at a rate of one per cent, the third-highest increase among provinces. Our growing economy, combined with significant private sector investments, are creating jobs, building opportunities for citizens and protecting communities across the province.

Our government recalled the Legislature early this fall and will use the notwithstanding clause of the Canadian constitution to pass legislation to protect parental rights.

You have likely been hearing a lot of commentary about the constitution, the court judgement and the proper use of the notwithstanding clause. But the question really comes down to this: should parents be included in important decisions regarding their kids? Who do you trust to raise your kids? Your Saskatchewan Party government trusts parents.

As we move through the fall sitting, we look forward to hearing from you regarding your questions, comments or concerns. You can contact my constituency office at 306.651.7100 or email ken.cheveldayoff.mla@sasktel.net.

Trade and Export Development Minister Jeremy Harrison recognized October 15 to 21 as Small Business Week in Saskatchewan. Launched nearly 50 years ago by Business Development Bank of Canada, the week celebrates the important contributions small businesses make to the economy.

"While the businesses may be small, the impact that they have on this province's economy is massive," Harrison said. "Small businesses provide the products, services and jobs that are so vital to our everyday lives. More than thirty per cent of all workers in the province work for a small business."

SUPREME COURT STRIKES DOWN FEDERAL IMPACT ASSESSMENT ACT REFERENCE CASE

5-2 Decision Finds That The Federal Government Overstepped Constitutional Authority And Should Be More "Cooperative" With Provinces In The Future

Saskatchewan welcomes the Supreme Court of Canada's (SCC) 5-2 ruling against the federal government's environmental Impact Assessment Act (IAA), formerly Bill C-69.

"This decision is nothing short of a constitutional tipping point and reasserts provinces' rights and primary jurisdiction over natural resources, the environment and power generation," Justice Minister and Attorney General Bronwyn Eyre said. "It should also force the federal government to reassess other areas of overreach, including capping oil and gas production and electrical generation. The IAA has stalled everything from Canadian highway and mine projects to LNG facilities and pipelines. It has thwarted investment, competitiveness and productivity across the country. This major decision will correct course."

NEW ACTION PLAN WILL CREATE MORE ADDICTIONS SPACES AND BETTER ACCESS TO CARE

New Funding for Mental Health and Addictions Services

A total of $49.4 million for a new Action Plan that will create 500 new addictions treatment spaces and a central intake system that makes care more accessible and responsive.

The Government of Saskatchewan today released a new Action Plan for Mental Health and Addictions that will create 500 new addictions treatment spaces and a central intake system that makes care more accessible and responsive.

New funding to support work beginning immediately under the new Action Plan will total $49.4 million when fully implemented in the fifth year of the plan.

The new Action Plan has three pillars of focus: building capacity for treatment, improving the system itself, and transitioning to a recovery-oriented system of care for addictions treatment.

Work will begin immediately on implementing a central intake system that patients can contact directly to refer themselves for mental health and addictions services. A central intake will make the system more accessible to patients and enable care providers to better coordinate care for patients across the system and throughout patients' care and recovery journey.

"To build capacity for addictions treatment, we are setting a new target of adding at least 500 addictions treatment spaces in communities across the province over the next five years," Mental Health and Addictions Minister Tim McLeod said. "With new announcements coming in the weeks and months ahead, we are on track to exceed our original target of adding 150 addictions treatment spaces. New funding in the Action Plan will further accelerate this work for a new near-term target of 200 spaces by the end of this fiscal year."
